

Pistols ban

I MUST comment on the Birmingham council's action in banning the Sex Pistols Group from appearing at the Town Hall, because in the words of Mr. T. Hanson: "They will not subject the people of Birmingham to such unadulterated filth."

I would be interested to know how many members of the council have seen the group perform or seen the much publicised interview.

Of course the council turns a blind eye to the porn that is on in many of our cinemas, and makes no bans on football clubs whose supporters turn parts of our city into a battleground.

It is a regular occurrence for shops and public houses to close on Saturdays when certain football teams are playing in the city but I have heard of no such action because the Sex Pistols were appearing.

The Sex Pistols tour was billed as "Anarchy in the UK," and can you blame them? With councils reacting in such ways it seems we need it.
